ANOTHER EFFORT TO BREAK LINE

German Forces Are Attacking on Western Front.

FIERCE BATTLE IN FLANDERS

Offensive Movement of Teutonic Armies is Regarded in London as Being Made Possible by Floods in the East, Allowing the Transfer of a Large Number of Troops to Belgium and France.

London, April 26.—The German rushes in Flanders and the Woevre, where they claim to have had considerable success, are believed to be the forerunners of another big effort to break through the allied lines in the west.

For many days Belgium has been concealed from the observation of neutrals, while reinforcements from Germany were being moved to the south to take part in the new offensive, which they hope is to carry them to Calais and possibly break the resistance of the allies.

The attack in Flanders, originally leveled at the French, has been transferred to the British lines, held by the Canadians on the immediate right of the French, and here for two days the men from the Dominion have been engaged in a deadly contest with the Germans. The latter state in their official report that they have made further progress toward Ypres and that the British counter attacks have been repulsed.

The French accounts, however, declare the allies' counter attack continues with success and that the British hold all their positions and repeats the charge that the Germans are using bombs containing asphyxiating gases.

The Frankfurter Zeitung justifies the use of these missiles on the ground that the allies have done likewise.

Reports Prove Conflicting.

The German attack in the Woevre, or in the Meuse hills, was directed against the French positions to the southwest of Combrès and, according to the Berlin statement, the French suffered a heavy defeat. Paris, however, says that in a counter attack the Germans were completely driven out of the first line which they had pushed back.

These offensive movements by the Germans have been made possible by the state of the ground on the Eastern front, where operations are very impossible until the spring floods have subsided.

Taking advantage of these conditions the Germans transferred a large number of troops to the west to make another big effort, which shows that they are not content to rely on a passive policy.

It is believed that a half a million new German troops have reached Flanders and that more guns and material are to be used than were provided in the original attempts to destroy the allied armies in the West—attempts which met with failure both in August and in October.

In the meantime, the Eastern front is enjoying a period of comparative calm, except in the mid-Carpathians, where the Russians continue to attack the Austrians in Uzsook pass and in the East, where the Austrians and Germans are trying to crush the Russian flank. Both sides report successes.

Czar Distributes Decorations.

Petrograd, April 26.—Dispatches from Lemberg, Galicia, state that Emperor Nicholas, accompanied by Grand Duke Nicholas and his staff, visited Przemyśl on Friday. The emperor also stopped at Sambor, where he inspected the guard of honor commanded by General Brussloff. The emperor thanked the soldiers for their faithful services and distributed the cross of St. George.

GERMAN PRESS PAYS VON TIRPITZ TRIBUTE.

London, April 26.—In a dispatch from Amsterdam the correspondent of the Exchange Telegram company says the entire German press has published eulogies of Admiral von Tirpitz, minister of marine and admiral of the fleet, on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of his entrance into the German naval service.

Emperor William and other notables have sent the admiral telegrams of congratulation in which he is hailed as the savior of the German empire.

GENERAL RUSSKY.

Noted Russian Officer
Is Dangerously Ill.

Petrograd, April 26.—The retirement of General Russky, one of Russia's most distinguished military leaders, is announced. The general has been suffering for some time from cancer and only continued so long in his command through a high patriotic sense of duty.

General Russky made his mark early in the war by his magnificent conduct of the Galician campaign, taking Lemberg and defeating the combined Austro-German armies.

The state of Russky's health is said to be precarious and it is not expected that he will be able to leave his bed again.

DECLARES WALSH'S STATEMENTS FALSE

J. D. Rockefeller, Jr., Shows His Indignation.

New York, April 26.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., gave out a statement in amplification of the one he issued in answer to Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the United States commission on industrial relations, who made public correspondence between Mr. Rockefeller and L. M. Bowers, chairman of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company. Mr. Rockefeller also reviews at length incidents in connection with the Colorado strike situation.

Mr. Rockefeller characterizes as false the statement of Chairman Walsh that he (Rockefeller) presumed to dictate letters that went out to the president of the United States and to the governors of the states over the signature of the governor of Colorado.

"That's false," Mr. Rockefeller's statement says.

JEWS SUFFER IN GALICIA

German Rabbi Says They Are More to Be Pitied Than Belgians.

New York, April 26.—The Jews in Galicia are in a worse plight than the Belgians as a result of the ravages of the war, declared speakers at the international convention here of the Mizrahi, the orthodox division of the Zionist movement, which is being attended by 900 delegates.

Rabbi Meyer Berlin, an editor of Frankfort, Germany, who presided, said the Jews of Galicia were more to be pitied than the Belgians.

"The Belgians are better able to reconstruct themselves," said Rabbi Berlin. "But how can the Jews ever build up again? Their theological seminaries in Galicia, which have been laid waste, constitute institutions 600 years old, productive of the finest scholars. The loss cannot be replaced by the Western culture of England and France."

BIG WAVE HITS SCHOONER

Owner of Gasoline Vessel and Two Passengers Perish.

Marshfield, Ore., April 26.—As the gasoline schooner Randolph was crossing Coquille bar a huge comber capsized it and three lives were lost.

The vessel was washed ashore with its captain, Charles Anderson, and Henry Colvin, a member of the crew, still alive, imprisoned in the hold. Rescuers chopped a hole in the hull and took them up.

Chauncey Carpenter, a passenger, the only man on deck when the wave struck the schooner, swam ashore.

Those lost were Ernest McConnell, part owner of the vessel, and Milton Cox and R. E. Knorr, passengers.

Roosevelt's Political Dealings are Bared

(By United Press)

Syracuse, N. Y., April 26.—The old ghosts arose today to haunt Theodore Roosevelt in his libel trial. Political scores were reopened and the dealings Roosevelt had while governor and president with William Barnes and former Senator Platt were bared, scores of letters being produced to show how Roosevelt worked with Senator Platt, consulting him regarding state legislation and appointments, showing that he was hand and glove with the republican machine. Although the evidence submitted was the most unfavorable Roosevelt was not disturbed, frankly admitting that Platt was the boss and that he worked with him, also stating that he frequently met Platt, while he was governor, for the purpose of discussing patronage and other matters. Letters showed where Roosevelt wrote Platt asking that his (Roosevelt's) architect friend be given a chance to compete for a government job. Other letters showed the details of Roosevelt's acquiescence in Platt's wishes in many matters. Roosevelt took pains to hold his temper even when Attorney Barnum attempted to rouse his ire.

(By United Press)

Syracuse, N. Y., April 26.—After walking several miles before breakfast, riding horseback and automobile on Sunday, besides conferring with his lawyers, Theodore Roosevelt took the stand again this morning, it being his fifth day on the stand, the cross-examination continuing. Barnes is in attendance at the Albany state constitutional convention and will remain there until summoned by telegraph that he is needed.

TWO ARE DEAD FOUR ARE HURT

(By United Press)

New York, April 26.—Sunday automobile accidents in New York City resulted in the death of two persons, and the serious injury of four others.

MAN KILLED IN CHARGED RIVER

Aitkin, Minn., April 26.—A fall into an electrically charged river late Sunday afternoon caused the death of J. E. Preston, of Minneapolis, an electrical expert who was testing the new generator installed. The current had been grounded in the Mississippi below the plant. Fish, killed by the current, were rising to the surface and a crowd was about the river. Preston in trying to keep the curious away, slipped in the mud and sliding down to the river, is believed to have grabbed one of the high voltage wires, being instantly killed.

(By United Press)

Duluth, April 26.—Supposedly brooding over financial troubles, William Bagan, one of the owners of Section 30 Iron Mine and reputed to have been a millionaire, shot and killed himself here at noon, no reason being given for the act. Section 30 is one of the three richest iron mines in the world.

GIRL ATE CANDY DIED SHORT TIME

(By United Press)

Chicago, April 26.—Detectives were enraged here this afternoon to find if possible the murderer of pretty 17-year old Katherine Roller, the daughter of a prosperous farmer. She went buggy riding with a young man on Saturday and ate some candy he gave her. She went into convulsions and died. An examination disclosed strychnine in the girl's stomach.

Long Drawn Out Conflict.

DANKL PREDICTS LONG WAR

Austrian General Sees No Signs of Early Peace.

Geneva, April 26.—General Dankl of the Austrian army is of the opinion that the war will not soon come to an end.

This Austrian commander, who has been active in defending the Carpathian passes against the Russians, expressed this opinion to Major Tanner of the Swiss army, who is also correspondent of the Basel Nachrichten. He declared the war will last for a long time and said he could not fix even an approximate date for its end.

He said also that the Swiss government has preserved its neutrality splendidly, favoring neither side.

INHABITANTS OF TEN VILLAGES ARE SLAIN

Refugees Reaching Russian Line Tell of Massacre.

Dilman, Persia, April 26.—The exodus of from twenty to thirty thousand Armenians and Nestorian Christians from Azerbaijan province, the massacre of more than 1,500 of those who were unable to flee, the death from disease of 2,000 in the compounds of the American mission in Urumiah and possibly of an equal number of refugees in the Caucasus have been confirmed.

Tiflis, Transcaucasia, April 26.—Refugees who have reached the Russian line report that the massacre of Armenians by Mohammedans is being continued on even a greater scale.

They say that all the inhabitants of ten villages near Van, in Armenia, Asiatic Turkey, have been put to death.

BRITAIN FREES TWO SHIPS

Vessels Carrying American Cotton

London, April 26.—The admiralty issued orders for the release of the steamers Veniro and Montenegro, detained by the British authorities at Gibraltar.

Both these vessels have on board American cotton consigned to Swiss firms through Italy. Although this cotton has not been certified, in accordance with the agreement, representations were made to the foreign office that the detention of these cargoes would cripple seriously the Swiss cotton industry and consequently permission was given for the vessels to proceed.

DANISH STEAMER RELEASED

Nidaros, Captured by the Germans,

London, April 26.—Reuter's correspondent at Havre reports that Paul Renkin, eldest son of the Belgian minister of the colonies, J. Renkin, was killed in action near Dixmude, Belgium, on Thursday.

AMERICAN NAVY VERY EFFICIENT

Secretary Daniels Reviews Progress for Two Years.

WRITES COLLEGE PRESIDENT

Two Hundred and Twenty-five Vessels of All Characters Are Now in Active Service, 101 of Various Types in Reserve and Seventy-seven Authorized and Under Construction.

Washington, April 26.—The progress made by the United States navy during the past two years is reviewed by Secretary of the Navy Daniels in a letter to President Harry A. Garfield of Williams college. President Garfield, a few days ago, addressed the following inquiry to Secretary Daniels:

"I shall be obliged if you will have sent to me an authoritative statement concerning the present status of the navy equipment of the United States. I wish to be in a position to meet the statements made by Representative Gardner of Massachusetts alleging that the United States is at present unprepared for military emergencies."

Secretary Daniels wrote in reply, in part:

"There are now in active service, fully commissioned, 225 vessels of all characters, which is thirty-six more than were full commissioned when I became secretary. There are also 101 vessels of various types, in reserve and in ordinary and uncommissioned, capable of rendering service in war. We have under construction and authorized seventy-seven vessels (nine dreadnoughts, twenty-three destroyers, thirty-eight submarines and seven auxiliaries) as compared with fifty-four vessels (five dreadnoughts, fourteen destroyers, twenty-three submarines, three gunboats and nine auxiliaries), which were under construction March 1, 1913.

Ammunition Details Secret.

"All the vessels enumerated, those in active service and those in reserve, are supplied with munitions of war. No navy makes public the quantity of ammunition and torpedoes, mines and other implements of naval warfare which it keeps ready. It may be said, however, that within the past two years the quantity of all has been steadily and greatly increased.

"For example, we have increased the number of mines, on hand and in process of manufacture, by 244 per cent. With reference to torpedoes the increase in two years has been 90 per cent. By the enlargement of the naval powder factory we soon shall be able almost to double its former capacity and like enlargement of the torpedo works and the equipment of a plant to construct mines will further increase, at decreased cost, the quantity of such stock, and the possession of these plants in times of emergency will enable the department to be in a better state of preparedness as regards the supply of ammunition than ever before.

"The personnel of the navy is at present composed of 4,355 line, staff and warrant officers, and 53,171 enlisted men. Increases in the number of officers is dependent almost entirely upon the output of the naval academy, admission to which is restricted by statute. The number of enlisted men also is restricted, and the navy today is recruited to the maximum strength allowed. There are with the colors 5,824 more men—an increase of 12 per cent—than there were on March 1, 1914."

What He'd Done.

"I've come to see if you can lend me $25."
"That so? Which way did you come?"
"Down Griswold street."
"Oh, you did, eh? Did it occur to you that you had walked right by eight or nine banks that are in the business of lending money to get to me?"—Detroit Free Press.

DECLARES BRITAIN NEEDS MORE MEN.

London, April 26.—Addressing a recruiting meeting Dr. Thomas J. Macnamara, parliamentary secretary of the admiralty, said:
"If you assume that Earl Kitchener is not only gratified but satisfied with the response to the call for volunteers, you fall into a very serious error. We want more men. We want them now, so that they may be properly trained to play an effective part in the struggle."

DECLARES BRITAIN NEEDS MORE MEN.

London, April 26.—Addressing a recruiting meeting Dr. Thomas J. Macnamara, parliamentary secretary of the admiralty, said:
"If you assume that Earl Kitchener is not only gratified but satisfied with the response to the call for volunteers, you fall into a very serious error. We want more men. We want them now, so that they may be properly trained to play an effective part in the struggle."

WAIST 7571 SKIRT 7532

You don't expect to buy a new dress every month, and when you do—you ought to have the assurance that it is beyond the commonplace—that it is stylish without being ordinary.

Discriminating women, who, in seasons past have found it to their advantage to choose Dress Goods in this store, say that are as exclusive in Style as they are satisfactory in Quality and Service.

This characteristic again emphasizes the supreme value of our advance showing of Summer Styles. If you demand suitable Dress Materials for any kind of wear, something that is beautiful in weave, print or coloring, as well as being exceedingly serviceable—we urge you to visit our store and make selections.

We particularly urge you to see the newest effects in Batistes, Voiles, Crepes, or plain and printed Rice Cloths. See the pretty new Dress Linens.

J. E. Mattson is recovering from the paralytic stroke he sustained.

The new council appointed D. B.
McAlpine village attorney.

E. R. Burns, village clerk, was allowed salary at $50 a month. At a special meeting later the clerk, on his motion, had it reduced to $40 a month.

Dr. J. E. McCoy was elected health officer at a salary of $35 a month.

A. W. Compton is the new pound-master.

Styles Beyond*the Commonplace

You don't expect to buy a new dress every month, and when you do—you ought to have the assurance that it is beyond the commonplace—that it is stylish without being ordinary.

Discriminating women, who, in seasons past have found it to their advantage to choose Dress Goods in this store, say that

LaPate Dress and Wash Fabrics

are as exclusive in Style as they are satisfactory in Quality and Service.

This characteristic again emphasizes the supreme value of our advance showing of Summer Styles. If you demand suitable Dress Materials for any kind of wear, something that is beautiful in weave, print or coloring, as well as being exceedingly serviceable—we urge you to visit our store and make selections.

We particularly urge you to see the newest effects in Ba-tistes, Voiles, Crepes, or plain and printed Rice Cloths. See the pretty new Dress Linens.

The Misses Kappel, who are working in Brainerd, spent Sunday at home.

West Against the East in D. A. R. Fight

Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey of Kansas

Mrs. William Cummings Story of New York

The veterans in many a contest in the Daughters of the American Revolution drew battle lines again in their regular contest in Washington over the choice of a president-general. This time the lines were drawn between the west and the east. Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey of Kansas opposed Mrs. William Cummings Story of New York for president-general. Mrs. Guernsey set forth a platform which provided, among other things, for one term of three years with no re-election for all national officers, to prevent the distractions consequent upon a campaign for a second term, all elected officers to have complete and unhampered control of their offices and to be held responsible for the proper conduct of the offices; and no mileage for officers and committee chairmen.

LAND OF THE TURK

A Region Literally Teeming With Historic Interest.

THE HOME OF BIBLE EVENTS.

Stirring Scenes and Dramas Were Enacted Within the Confines of the Later Ottoman Empire—Mighty Babylon That All but Ruled the World.

No other people possess lands of such wonderful historic interests as the Turks, says the National Geographic Magazine. Occupying a region only a third as great in area as the United States, they have yet a territory within whose boundaries the greatest, the most influential events in human history have occurred.

The Bible with little exception is an account of the doings of people who never got beyond what have hitherto been the confines of Turkey. From a single corner of the Ottoman empire arose the Babylon that in its day all but ruled the world. From that same region envy and famine conspired to send the children of Abraham into Egypt, which until recently was embraced in the empire of the Ottomans. Thence, as they marched back from Africa to Asia through the wilderness of sin to the promised land, they never once set foot off of what came to be Turkish soil. And when the star of Bethlehem arose it stood over a manger on land that is now Turkish soil.

In Asia Minor once dwelt Croesus, whose name to this day expresses the last degree of wealth. Here was Pergamus, whose library in its period was the finest in the world, making such demands for papyrus that Ptolemy was led to prohibit the exportation of that commodity from Egypt. Under the reign of the Caesars Asia Minor alone contained 500 populous cities, enriched with all the gifts of nature and adorned with all the refinements of art.

The civilization of the Hittites, whose lands finally were occupied by the hosts of Israel; the civilization of Tyre and Sidon, the greatest colonizers of ancient times; the civilization of Egypt, rival of Persia and Chaldea in the value of the heritage it bequeathed to the future; the civilization of Constantinople and the Byzantine empire, in its day more gorgeous than any that had gone before—all found their home within the boundaries of what later came to be the land of the Turk. Mohammed and the religion which bears his name and now claims several hundred million adherents were also born in the Ottoman empire.

The greatest of these ancient empires was the Babylonian. The Babylonians built their civilization upon an irrigation ditch and made Babylonia a land teeming with people, the seat of magnificent cities and the home of a world conquering empire. Babylonia rivaled the valley of the Nile in production. Every Greek traveler who wandered that way marveled at the luxuriousness of the crops of Mesopotamia. Even Herodotus hesitated to tell the story in its fullness lest the people for whom he wrote history might regard him as a nature faker. The hanging gardens of Babylon stirred the admiration of the travelers out of the west, so that they wrote them down as one of the seven wonders of the world. Nebuchadnezzar built them for his wife, Amytis, the beautiful Mede, to rescue her from her homesickness for her native Median hills.

King Sargon, though he lived at the dawn of history, reviewed his reign much as a president of the United States or a great European sovereign might review his official career. He tells us that he restored ancient ruined cities and colonized them; that he made barren tracts of land fertile; that he gave his nation a splendid system of reservoirs, dams and canals; that he protected the needy from want, the weak from oppression, filled the nation's granaries with corn, brought down the high cost of living and found new markets for the nation's products.

Babylon's fortifications are said to have had a circumference of fifty-five miles, the outer wall of which was 350 feet high and 85 feet thick. The palace of Sargon II. covered about twenty-five acres, and its front was twice as long as that of the United States capitol. Forty-eight great winged bulls guarded its entrance, and upon its walls were more than two miles of sculptured slabs telling the story of the king's reign.

Turkey holds by an uncertain tenure a narrow strip of land on the Red sea coast of Arabia that is of great historic interest. Within its limits are the two holy cities of the Mohammedans, Mecca was the birthplace of Mohammed and is visited yearly by thousands of pilgrims from Asia, Africa and Turkey in Europe. At Medina, which lies about 270 miles north of Mecca, is the tomb of Mohammed, who died there.

Damascus, the capital of Syria, is one of the most ancient cities in the world and is a vast conglomeration of mosques and bazars, and northwest of Damascus are the mighty ruins of Baalbek.

POPULAR MECHANICS

Making an Oak Stain.

To make old oak of ash, elm, box, alder, chestnut, maple, yew and sycamore wood use a solution of copper acetate or iron acetate. Either of these can be made by allowing a strong acid to come in contact with copper or iron. Acetic acid, or vinegar, will do for the acid. The chemical can be obtained from a local druggist if it is not desired to make the stain. By varying the strength of the solution several shades may be obtained. A weak solution of iron acetate gives various brown hues. As the strength of the salt increases by concentration the shades of brown darken.

How Blued Steel is Produced.

Heat bluing, which is familiar to every one, is applied to watch and clock hands, buttons, buckles and a large variety of steel articles and gives a finish of a pleasing blue or black color, which is not, however, so very resistant to corrosion. It is produced in several ways, such as dipping the parts in a bath of molten saltpeter, heating them on an iron plate in the air or tumbling them in a sheet iron barrel heated by a gas flame. Revolvers and similar parts are very often given a fine blue finish by heating in charcoal.—Engineering Magazine.

Furnace For Soft Metals.

Experimenters desiring to make small castings of zinc, brass, copper and other metals of low fusion point will find the simple furnace illustrated suitable to their requirements, says Popular Mechanics. The body of the furnace was made of an old ten gallon milk can, which was lined on the inside with fire brick, whereupon a base about four inches high was built up with the brick in the bottom for the crucible. A crucible six inches in diameter and eight inches high was set on the built up base, then two walls of fire brick were built up on each side of the crucible to within four inches of the top of the shell. The cover for the top is lined with fire clay.

A hole three inches in diameter was cut in the shell on one side and a four inch hole on the other. These holes should be located so that the smaller one enters the side at the center of one compartment formed by the walls and crucible, and the other makes an outlet in the other division, both holes being near the bottom of the can. The flame from a Bunsen burner, A, is directed through the smaller hole against the crucible and by the walls deflected upward along the side of the crucible and over the top, thence down the opposite side and out.

Mixing Battery Solution.

To secure uniformity of solution the water and acid should be well mixed before pouring it into the battery cells. In mixing the water should be placed in a porcelain or enamel ware dish and the acid added slowly, stirring continuously with a clean wood paddle. Mixing causes the mixture to become quite warm, and the solution should not be placed in the cells until it has cooled down.—Automobile Dealer.

Every one is cordially invited to be present at Sunday school and church services in the M. E. church at Barrows on Sunday, April 25th. Rev. Koch of Brainerd, will speak to the children and others will probably hear something to interest them.

Mrs. Anna Perlinger went to Brainerd on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sol Schamp spent Saturday in Little Falls.

A. J. Smith loaded a car with straw on Monday. It was baled by Sam Clay and crew.

Thirty-three gallons of cream were shipped from Crow Wing on Monday.

Mrs. Rose Monette left for her new home at Bruno on Friday.

The Misses Kappel, who are working in Brainerd, spent Sunday at home.

West Against the East in D. A. R. Fight

Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey of Kansas

Mrs. William Cummings Story of New York

The veterans in many a contest in the Daughters of the American Revolution drew battle lines again in their regular contest in Washington over the choice of a president-general. This time the lines were drawn between the west and the east. Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey of Kansas opposed Mrs. William Cummings Story of New York for president-general. Mrs. Guernsey set forth a platform which provided, among other things, for one term of three years with no re-election for all national officers, to prevent the distractions consequent upon a campaign for a second term, all elected officers to have complete and unhampered control of their offices and to be held responsible for the proper conduct of the offices; and no mileage for officers and committee chairmen.

LAND OF THE TURK

A Region Literally Teeming With Historic Interest.

THE HOME OF BIBLE EVENTS.

Stirring Scenes and Dramas Were Enacted Within the Confines of the Later Ottoman Empire—Mighty Babylon That All Ruled the World.

No other people possess lands of such wonderful historic interests as the Turks, says the National Geographic Magazine. Occupying a region only a third as great in area as the United States, they have yet a territory within whose boundaries the greatest, the most influential events in human history have occurred.

The Bible with little exception is an account of the doings of people who never got beyond what have hitherto been the confines of Turkey. From a single corner of the Ottoman empire arose the Babylon that in its day all ruled the world. From that same region envy and famine conspired to send the children of Abraham into Egypt, which until recently was embraced in the empire of the Ottomans. Thence, as they marched back from Africa to Asia through the wilderness of sin to the promised land, they never once set foot off of what came to be Turkish soil. And when the star of Bethlehem arose it stood over a manger on land that is now Turkish soil.

In Asia Minor once dwelt Croesus, whose name to this day expresses the last degree of wealth. Here was Pergamus, whose library in its period was the finest in the world, making such demands for papyrus that Ptolemy was led to prohibit the exportation of that commodity from Egypt. Under the reign of the Caesars Asia Minor alone contained 500 populous cities, enriched with all the gifts of nature and adorned with all the refinements of art.

The civilization of the Hittites, whose lands finally were occupied by the hosts of Israel; the civilization of Tyre and Sidon, the greatest colonizers of ancient times; the civilization of Egypt, rival of Persia and Chaldea in the value of the heritage it bequeathed to the future; the civilization of Constantinople and the Byzantine empire, in its day more gorgeous than any that had gone before—all found their home within the boundaries of what later came to be the land of the Turk. Mohammed and the religion which bears his name and now claims several hundred million adherents were also born in the Ottoman empire.

The greatest of these ancient empires was the Babylonian. The Babylonians built their civilization upon an irrigation ditch and made Babylonia a land teeming with people, the seat of magnificent cities and the home of a world conquering empire. Babylonia rivaled the valley of the Nile in production. Every Greek traveler who wandered that way marveled at the luxuriance of the crops of Mesopotamia. Even Herodotus hesitated to tell the story in its fullness lest the people for whom he wrote history might regard him as a nature faker. The hanging gardens of Babylon stirred the admiration of the travelers out of the west, so that they wrote them down as one of the seven wonders of the world. Nebuchadnezzar built them for his wife, Amytis, the beautiful Mede, to rescue her from her homesickness for her native Medean hills.

King Sargon, though he lived at the dawn of history, reviewed his reign much as a president of the United States or a great European sovereign might review his official career. He tells us that he restored ancient ruined cities and colonized them; that he made barren tracts of land fertile; that he gave his nation a splendid system of reservoirs, dams and canals; that he protected the needy from want, the weak from oppression, filled the nation's granaries with corn, brought down the high cost of living and found new markets for the nation's products.

Babylon's fortifications are said to have had a circumference of fifty-five miles, the outer wall of which was 350 feet high and 85 feet thick. The palace of Sargon II. covered about twenty-five acres, and its front was twice as long as that of the United States Capitol. Forty-eight great winged bulls guarded its entrance, and upon its walls were more than two miles of sculptured slabs telling the story of the king's reign.

Turkey holds by an uncertain tenure a narrow strip of land on the Red sea coast of Arabia that is of great historic interest. Within its limits are the two holy cities of the Mohammedans. Mecca was the birthplace of Mohammed and is visited yearly by thousands of pilgrims from Asia, Africa and Turkey in Europe. At Medina, which lies about 270 miles north of Mecca, is the tomb of Mohammed, who died there.

Damascus, the capital of Syria, is one of the most ancient cities in the world and is a vast conglomeration of mosques and bazars, and northwest of Damascus are the mighty ruins of Baalbek.

POPULAR MECHANICS

Making an Oak Stain.

To make old oak of ash, elm, box, alder, chestnut, maple, yew and sycamore wood use a solution of copper acetate or iron acetate. Either of these can be made by allowing a strong acid to come in contact with copper or iron. Acetic acid, or vinegar, will do for the acid. The chemical can be obtained from a local druggist if it is not desired to make the stain. By varying the strength of the solution several shades may be obtained. A weak solution of iron acetate gives various brown hues. As the strength of the salt increases by concentration the shades of brown darken.

How Blued Steel is Produced.

Heat bluing, which is familiar to every one, is applied to watch and clock hands, buttons, buckles and a large variety of steel articles and gives a finish of a pleasing blue or black color, which is not, however, so very resistant to corrosion. It is produced in several ways, such as dipping the parts in a bath of molten salt-peter, heating them on an iron plate in the air or tumbling them in a sheet iron barrel heated by a gas flame. Revolvers and similar parts are very often given a fine blue finish by heating in charcoal.—Engineering Magazine.

Furnace For Soft Metals.

Experimenters desiring to make small castings of zinc, brass, copper and other metals of low fusion point will find the simple furnace illustrated suitable to their requirements, says Popular Mechanics. The body of the furnace was made of an old ten gallon milk can, which was lined on the inside with fire brick, whereupon a base about four inches high was built up with the brick in the bottom for the crucible. A crucible six inches in diameter and eight inches high was set on the built up base, then two walls of fire brick were built up on each side of the crucible to within four inches of the top of the shell. The cover for the top is lined with fire clay.

A hole three inches in diameter was cut in the shell on one side and a four inch hole on the other. These holes should be located so that the smaller one enters the side at the center of one compartment formed by the walls and crucible, and the other makes an outlet in the other division, both holes being near the bottom of the can. The flame from a Bunsen burner, A, is directed through the smaller hole against the crucible and by the walls deflected upward along the side of the crucible and over the top, thence down the opposite side and out.

Mixing Battery Solution.

To secure uniformity of solution the water and acid should be well mixed before pouring it into the battery cells. In mixing the water should be placed in a porcelain or enamel ware dish and the acid added slowly, stirring continuously with a clean wood paddle. Mixing causes the mixture to become quite warm, and the solution should not be placed in the cells until it has cooled down.—Automobile Dealer.

FROM BRITISH FRONT

By William G. Shepherd,
United Press Staff Correspondent
Copyright 1915, by United Press
Copyright in Great Britain

(The following is the first of a series of stories from the British front written by Wm. G. Shepherd, United Press staff correspondent, and the only American representing an American press organization, who is now with Gen. Sir John French's army under official credentials—Editor.)

With the British army, Northern France, April 16—(By mail to New York)—Neuve Chapelle is the new head that Gen. French has just threaded on the 400 miles string of trenches that Madame Europe wears upon her breast.

Just as the great trans-continental railroads of the United States pass impressively through small towns, so the great trans-continental trenches have had their route bent by the great English general to take in the great town of Neuve Chapelle.

I find the residents of the city are extremely proud of the distinction. This is probably because they personally helped Gen. French in his task of trench building. There are no French people remaining here in fact there are no houses remaining.

This showery afternoon a rainbow is shining on a huge black cloud over Neuve Chapelle and the French magazine artists who are in this party of tourists to England's newest possession are making every artistic effort to draw it in their pictures.

"People will think we're faking it if we mention the rainbow," said one artist.

"But it's there," says another famous artist. "I'm going to put it in." The rainbow was there in truth, bending over the little crushed French town, but with no one to see it but the English soldiers who peeped out of trenches at it and the tourists.

All the artists but one are putting in the rainbow. That one is Matani of Italy and London. A shell broke within fifteen feet of him this afternoon, splashed mud on the picture on which he intended the rainbow to appear and spoiled it. So he is drawing a picture of a bursting shell with a correspondent and artists running away from the huge spouting lily of mud.

A visit to Neuve Chapelle is bound to be full of incidents of the sort that attracted Matani's attention. Neuve Chapelle is thoroughly destroyed as a crushed egg shell. Its only streets are trenches; its only houses are dug-outs; death fills the space above the trench line; shells criss cross the sky above it and burst in the rains.

There's nothing more that a shell can do to Neuve Chapelle except stir up the debris. The shells have ransacked the cemetery; blown open the graves; scattered bits of coffins and fragments of bones over the cemetery lawns and then churned the lawns into a mass of mud, bones, coffin bits and fragments of gravestones. Then as if nothing would satisfy the fury, they have blown this mixture into the air and scattered it all over the neighborhood portion of the town. Neuve Chapelle has disappeared but its name goes into history as the town which was shelled by 600 cannon; as the town which was fought for, between the English and Germans, at a cost of 100 lives for every ruined house in the streets.

The English prize Neuve Chapelle, because it is a token of Gen. French's proof that the German, in a trench, can be routed in an attack. The battle of Neuve Chapelle marked the first attack on a line to any great extent against the entrenched German forces.

It is a proof that has put fire into the fighting of both the English and the French.

"It's worlds better now," said an English officer to me in the trenches this afternoon. "We had struck to the trenches month after month wondering how strong the fellow across the water really was, and now we know. We are out of our old trenches into the new ones at Neuve Chapelle. It's just like that Cowboy Jack Johnson fight."

I asked him how the two were alike.

"Well, we were like the cowboy the first part of the war, and Germany was like Jack Johnson. Germany knew that if she licked us she'd have to do it in the early rounds; she couldn't make a long fight of it. "Well, last winter's fighting was just like the early rounds in the cowboy-Johnson fight. Can you imagine how worried the cowboy was until he saw that Johnson was beginning to get tired. And can you imagine how happy he felt when he found that all his blows were beginning to worry the big black fellow. Well, that was us at Neuve Chapelle. Neuve Chapelle showed us. All of us fellows who were in that fight, feel just like Jess Willard must have felt about the sixteenth round."

The point of this is not that Neuve Chapelle was interested in the Jack Johnson fight, although the news did flash like shell fire through the trenches in the town as soon as it was received thirty hours late, but that the capture of Neuve Chapelle put a new hope and a new fighting spirit into the English army and into the French army. It put a smile on the faces of the English soldiers that had been worn by the grinding rigors of the winter; it put them in tune with the spring that is turning everything in trenchland green. It will make the French people understand the rainbow in the black cloud, which the French artist sketched this afternoon.

A day at Neuve Chapelle including the trip, there and back from the English headquarters is an adventure of a life time.

LIQUOR QUESTION TO BE BIG ISSUE

Politicians Seek to Keep It Out of National Campaign.

KENTUCKY FIGHT IMPORTANT

Southern Congressmen, as a Rule, Are Not in Favor of Prohibition, but Bow to the Will of Their Constituents. Bryan May Inject Question in the Next Democratic Convention.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, April 26.—[Special.]—The liquor question in politics is getting to be about the most interesting preliminary feature of the coming presidential campaign. The politicians—at least some of them—are scheming as to how they can keep it out of national politics, while it is surmised that others are trying to inject prohibition into the national canvass.

One important liquor fight is now going on, that in Kentucky, and it is believed that the result will have a far-reaching effect upon national politics next year. If a rock ribbed Democratic state like Kentucky joins the prohibition column it is expected that it will be the forerunner of an attempt to force prohibition into the next national platform.

Southern Democratic leaders for the most part are not prohibitionists; but, bowing to the will of their constituents, they have supported prohibition in the national legislature. They may be forced to support prohibition in the next national convention.

Keeping an Eye on Bryan.

"What is Bryan's game?" is a question often asked also. "What is Bryan getting ready to do?"

The secretary of state has never hesitated a moment to declare himself on any great moral question. His closest friend in the cabinet, Josephus Daniels, has made the liquor question the paramount feature of his administration of the navy department. Bryan has been outspoken in his advocacy of prohibition and has put it into politics whenever possible. A man like Bryan, seeing the political advantage of the move, might not hesitate to inject the issue into the next national convention.

Keystone Favorite Son.

"They'll never name a man from New England," remarked a well informed man from Massachusetts the other day when the movement for Senator Weeks had been mentioned.

"They'll never go to Pennsylvania for a candidate," is the remark heard when there has been a suggestion that the Keystone State might present a man at the next Republican convention.

But it is interesting, just the same. In view of the statement that Philander Chase Knox may be that man. Knox was attorney general in McKinley's cabinet and continued to hold the position under Roosevelt until there was an opportunity to enter the senate as the successor of Matt Quay. He left the senate to become Taft's secretary of state. If Knox wants a delegation from Pennsylvania there is little doubt about his getting it. He had most of the delegates in the convention in 1908.

Supreme Court Attracts.

With neither house of congress in session the supreme court seems to be the chief attraction these days for the throngs of sightseers that visit the capitol. The small courtroom is not large enough to accommodate the crowds, and hundreds stand in line by the hour in order to gain admittance. The guides say that most of the visitors ask that Justice Hughes be pointed out first. Perhaps it is because he is considered a possibility as president that he is the important figure.

An Undesirable Visitor.

General Huerta is an undesirable visitor in the United States at this time and perhaps at any other time. Huerta has figured in the political debates in congress, and he may figure in politics in this country if he stays here. He is not the first ex-president of a Latin American republic classed as undesirable. Castro of Venezuela was denied admission and Zelaya of Nicaragua was also unwelcome.

Gladdens Their Hearts.

The revival of business throughout the country gladdens the hearts of the Democrats. No matter what they have been saying, they are really aware that if business depression continued they would enter the national canvass next year under a heavy handicap. "If men are at work the Democrats will win," remarked a sage of that party. He was coming over the results of the spring elections and drew his conclusions from years of experience.

Burton's Handicaps.

Cables from different points in South America report the progress of Theodore E. Burton as he wends his way on a pilgrimage which may point to a presidential nomination. Meanwhile certain handicaps which burden his boom have been brought forward. One of these is that Burton is "a little navy man." In the house he opposed every navy program and in the senate has been a consistent opponent of navy increases. But the peace people will be the more strongly favorable to him. Burton himself never took his boom very seriously.

ROOT NOT SEEKING THE NOMINATION

Friends Say He Realizes That Age Is Against Him.

HE LIKES TO STAY AT HOME

New York Expected to Send a Delegation to the Convention Instructed to Vote For Former Senator, However, Bryan Boosters Always on the Job, and He Always Aids Political Friends.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, April 26.—[Special.]—"Root does not want to be president." That statement was made by a former New York congressman, who has been a member of the Republican machine for many years. "It may sound strange, but it is a fact; he actually does not want to be president. What-ever he may have thought about it eight or ten years ago, any ambition in that direction has left him."

Elihu Root is rather in love with life. He likes to live; likes people; likes his associates and his friends. He doubts whether he would last a year in the White House, as he would be seventy-two years old when he entered upon the duties if he should be elected.

The death of every man with whom he has been associated, Nelson W. Aldrich, for instance, gives him a slight jar. He sits up and takes notice. Aldrich was seventy-four, only four years older than Root at the present time.

What Will New York Do?

Mr. Root is well aware that it is the intention of New York Republicans to compliment him by sending a delegation for him to the next national convention.

"I must be careful and not allow any idea to get abroad that such action is anything more than a compliment," he has told his friends. He does not want to in any manner consent to anything that would actually put him in the race for the nomination. Under such circumstances it is interesting to speculate upon what the New York delegation would do. Probably with a delegation elected to vote for Root just as a compliment it would be in shape to handle any opportunity offered after a prolonged struggle like that of 1888.

Bryan's Host of Boosters.

Probably no man in public life has had such a host of boosters as William J. Bryan. Colonel Roosevelt alone excepted, and, as I have said before, Roosevelt is always an exception to all rules and everything else. Those Bryan boosters are always on the job. They never let an opportunity pass when they could give Bryan a lift, and Bryan has reciprocated in so far as he has been able.

Those "deserving Democrats" he mentioned in a publication some time ago and for whom he was seeking federal positions consist largely of men who have helped him in the past. One of the greatest regrets Bryan has is that he cannot give places to many of the men who helped him, but so far as he has had power he has cared for them.

Bryan Would Turn 'Em Out.

If Bryan was president there is no doubt that he would make room for his Democratic friends. He would turn out the Republican officeholders right and left. Bryan does not believe in life tenures, nor does he hold that any man is indispensable to the government. Many a time he has said that he thought those who had been holding positions so long ought to get out and give Democrats an opportunity. He did not like Cleveland's method of retaining Republicans. It is quite likely that his one regret in the present administration is that so many Republicans are still holding office while hungry Democrats walk the streets.

What Every Politician Wants.

Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas says that he wants an "open convention," one in which the delegates come from all the states uninstructed and can make up their minds who should be nominated. That is what every politician wants. Take a convention of uninstructed delegates with a dozen favorite sons it would be possible for the shrewd politicians to name the man they wanted. The instructed delegate is a great hindrance to political manipulation.

Nothing Bothered Aldrich.

In all the years that he was boss of the senate Nelson W. Aldrich never allowed anything to bother him. At times he was denounced in unmeasured terms in the newspapers and sometimes on the floor of the senate by his opponents, but he never "turned a hair." He would smile and appear to be utterly indifferent to denunciation and criticism of the abusive kind. The only time he was ever greatly disturbed was when Dolliver of Iowa so unmercifully scored the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. He refused to remain in his seat during the attacks the brilliant westerner hurled at his pet measure.

Jim Reed's Speeches.

"Do you go to the senate to hear your husband speak?" Mrs. Reed of Missouri was asked.

"Oh, no," was the reply. "The senator often tells me what he is going to say. Many times I ask him to go over his speech to me, as I want to know what he is going to say."

SILVER BULLET WAR

By Carl W. Ackerman, United Press Staff Correspondent. Copyright, 1915 by the United Press, Copyright in Great Britain.

Berlin, April 23—Via The Hague and London—"If this is to be a war of silver bullets Germany is prepared. Wall Street is and can be with the allies, but Germany will remain unfrightened. The German people have oversubscribed two war loans. In my opinion they stand ready to over-subscribe a third, should a third prove necessary."

That is the opinion of financial Germany, as expressed to me today by Dr. Karl Helfferich, secretary of the imperial treasury. It reflects to the official view of the relations of finance to the war.

"The fact that a German mark today is worth 22 cents instead of the normal 24," I said to him, "is being quoted abroad as indication that Germany is already whipped. That is one question not understood in the U. S. Can you explain it from the German standpoint?"

"At the commencement of the war" Dr. Helfferich continued, "communication between the U. S. and Germany was out. Financiers are naturally a timid people. First impressions always count with them. It was impossible to keep in close communication with the U. S. Our imports and exports were 'practically stopped. Considerable foreign investments were blocked. We have been unable to conduct our business with the U. S. And our financiers and other neutral foreigners were unable to know at first hand, just what the situation in Germany actually was. On the other hand, London and Paris and New York have been in complete uninterrupted communication. Morgan and other American financiers established branches with the allies. Success for the latter meant success and wealth for these financiers. This has all contributed to slight depreciation of German exchange."

Dr. Helfferich, who is one of Germany's most successful financiers, although 43 years of age, was director of the Deutsche bank, largest in Germany, until the Kaiser picked him to handle the war finances. He has raised two war loans exceeding $3,000,000,000 and is the real man "behind the money" of the empire.

"The money already subscribed," he continued, "will last until October or November. If the war is continued and more money is needed, a third loan will be floated. And it will also be over-subscribed. Let me tell you why," he said, leaning forward through puffs of cigaret smoke. "There are two reasons. German money stays in Germany, as everything the army needs is made in Germany. When supplies are purchased the money goes to German industries and to German workmen."

"The two billions available in April which will be spent by fall will all go back to the German people, the soldiers and their workers today have saving bank deposits of five billions dollars. Although many depositors subscribed to the last loan during January and February when the subscriptions were made these deposits increased $150,000,000. Compare this situation with France. Her one loan amounted to $300,000,000 francs cash. It was ridiculously small, a mere drop in the bucket. So France is now paying her war expenses with treasury bills. Together with England and Russia she is borrowing heavily in the U. S. France today has a debt of five billion francs against the Bank of France. She also has some billions owing for supplies of all kinds. That it is a bad situation." "What affect will the British have upon the situation in Germany?" I asked. "Germany cannot be starved. We have enough food to comfortably feed every one until September or October. The prospects are splendid for good crops throughout the fatherland this year. If the harvest is not too much below the normal we will have by the first of August, enough supplies to last another year."

"This war has now developed into an economic struggle. England, who cannot fight us with iron and steel, can find little hope in her silver bullets or in the prospect of trying to starve women, children and other men combatants. Normally Germany imports only eight per cent of the food it needs. As a result of conservation since the war, people are able now to exist on our own resources. If the harvest is what we expect more bread will be allotted in the fall, as because of the bread cards it has been decided to continue the system until the end of the war. Germany has raised more barley, oats and potatoes per acre than ever before in the history of the world, even in the U. S."

When asked regarding the peace rumors, especially that which has suggested the arrangement of a separate peace with Russia, Dr. Helfferich shook his head.

"I do not think there can be any talk of peace until there is a successful outcome to the war?" he said. Helfferich, besides being a noted financier, is also Germany's leading economist. Since the war his book "Prosperity of the German People," has had an enormous sale and has gone into five editions and is accepted as the standard of its kind.

FROM BRITISH FRONT

By William G. Shepherd,
United Press Staff Correspondent
Copyright 1915, by United Press
Copyright in Great Britain

(The following is the first of a series of stories from the British front written by Wm. G. Shepherd, United Press staff correspondent, and the only American representing an American press organization, who is now with Gen. Sir John French's army under official credentials—Editor.)

With the British army, Northern France, April 16—(By mail to New York)—Neuve Chapelle is the new bead that Gen. French has just threaded on the 400 miles string of trenches that Madame Europe wears upon her breast.

Just as the great trans-continental railroads of the United States pass impressively through small towns, so the great trans continental trenches have had their route bent by the great English general to take in the great town of Neuve Chapelle.

I find the residents of the city are extremely proud of the distinction. This is probably because they personally helped Gen. French in his task of trench building. There are no French people remaining here in fact there are no houses remaining.

This showery afternoon a rainbow is shining on a huge black cloud over Neuve Chapelle and the French magazine artists who are in this party of tourists to England's newest possession are making every artistic effort to draw it in their pictures.

"People will think we're faking it if we mention the rainbow," said one artist.

"But it's there," says another famous artist. "I'm going to put it in." The rainbow was there in truth, bending over the little crushed French town, but with no one to see it but the English soldiers who peeped out of trenches at it and the tourists.

All the artists but one are putting in the rainbow. That one is Matani of Italy and London. A shell broke within fifteen feet of him this afternoon, splashed mud on the picture on which he intended the rainbow to appear and spoiled it. So he is drawing a picture of a bursting shell with a correspondent and artists running away from the huge spouting lily of mud.

A visit to Neuve Chapelle is bound to be full of incidents of the sort that attracted Matani's attention. Neuve Chapelle is thoroughly destroyed as a crushed egg shell. Its only streets are trenches; its only houses are dug-outs; death fills the space above the trench line; shells criss cross the sky above it and burst in the ruins.

There's nothing more that a shell can do to Neuve Chapelle except stir up the debris. The shells have ransacked the cemetery; blown open the graves; scattered bits of coffins and fragments of bones over the cemetery lawns and then churned the lawns into a mass of mud, bones, coffin bits and fragments of gravestones. Then as if nothing would satisfy their fury, they have blown this mixture into the air and scattered it all over the neighborhood portion of the town. Neuve Chapelle has disappeared but its name goes into history as the town which was shelled by 600 cannon; as the town which was fought for, between the English and Germans, at a cost of 100 lives for every ruined house in the streets.

The English prize Neuve Chapelle, because it is a token of Gen. French's proof that the German, in a trench, can be routed in an attack. The battle of Neuve Chapelle marked the first attack on a line to any great extent against the entrenched German forces.

It is a proof that has put fire into the fighting of both the English and the French.

"It's worlds better now," said an English officer to me in the trenches this afternoon. "We had struck to the trenches month after month wondering how strong the fellow across the water really was, and now we know. We are out of our old trenches into the new ones at Neuve Chapelle. It's just like that Cowboy Judd Johnson fight."

I asked him how the two were alike.

"Well, we were like the cowboy the first part of the war, and Germany was like Jack Johnson. Germany knew that if she licked us she'd have to do it in the early rounds; she couldn't make a long fight of it. "Well, last winter's fighting was just like the early rounds in the cowboy-Johnson fight. Can you imagine how worried the cow boy was until he saw that Johnson was beginning to get tired. And can you imagine how happy he felt when he found that all his blows were beginning to worry the big black fellow. Well, that was us at Neuve Chapelle. Neuve Chapelle showed us. All of us fellows who were in that fight, feel just like Jess Willard must have felt about the sixteenth round."

The point of this is not that Neuve Chapelle was interested in the Jack Johnson fight, although the news did flash like shell fire through the trenches in the town as soon as it was received thirty hours late, but that the capture of Neuve Chapelle put a new hope and a new fighting spirit into the English army and into the French army. It put a smile on the faces of the English soldiers that had been worn by the grinding rigors of the winter; it put them in tune with the spring that is turning everything in trenchland green. It will make the French people understand the rainbow in the black cloud, which the French artist sketched this afternoon.

A day at Neuve Chapelle including the trip, there and back from the English headquarters is an adventure of a life time.

LIQUOR QUESTION TO BE BIG ISSUE

Politicians Seek to Keep It Out of National Campaign.

KENTUCKY FIGHT IMPORTANT

Southern Congressmen, as a Rule, Are Not in Favor of Prohibition, but Bow to the Will of Their Constituents. Bryan May Inject Question in the Next Democratic Convention.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, April 26.—[Special.]—The liquor question in politics is getting to be about the most interesting preliminary feature of the coming presidential campaign. The politicians—at least some of them—are scheming as to how they can keep it out of national politics, while it is surmised that others are trying to inject prohibition into the national canvass.

One important liquor fight is now going on, that in Kentucky, and it is believed that the result will have a far-reaching effect upon national politics next year. If a rock ribbed Democratic state like Kentucky joins the prohibition column it is expected that it will be the forerunner of an attempt to force prohibition into the next national platform.

Southern Democratic leaders for the most part are not prohibitionists; but, bowing to the will of their constituents, they have supported prohibition in the national legislature. They may be forced to support prohibition in the next national convention.

Keeping an Eye on Bryan.

"What is Bryan's game?" is a question often asked also. "What is Bryan getting ready to do?"

The secretary of state has never hesitated a moment to declare himself on any great moral question. His closest friend in the cabinet, Josephus Daniels, has made the liquor question the paramount feature of his administration of the navy department. Bryan has been outspoken in his advocacy of prohibition and has put it into politics whenever possible. A man like Bryan, seeing the political advantage of the move, might not hesitate to inject the issue into the next national convention.

Keystone Favorite Son.

"They'll never name a man from New England," remarked a well informed man from Massachusetts the other day when the movement for Senator Weeks had been mentioned. "They'll never go to Pennsylvania for a candidate," is the remark heard when there has been a suggestion that the Keystone State might present a man at the next Republican convention.

But it is interesting, just the same, in view of the statement that Philander Chase Knox may be that man. Knox was attorney general in McKinley's cabinet and continued to hold the position under Roosevelt until there was an opportunity to enter the senate as the successor of Matt Quay. He left the senate to become Taft's secretary of state. If Knox wants a delegation from Pennsylvania there is little doubt about his getting it. He had most of the delegates in the convention in 1908.

Supreme Court Attracts.

With neither house of congress in session the supreme court seems to be the chief attraction these days for the throngs of sightseers that visit the capitol. The small courtroom is not large enough to accommodate the crowds, and hundreds stand in line by the hour in order to gain admittance. The guides say that most of the visitors ask that Justice Hughes be pointed out first. Perhaps it is because he is considered a possibility as president that he is the important figure.

An Undesirable Visitor.

General Huerta is an undesirable visitor in the United States at this time and perhaps at any other time. Huerta has figured in the political debates in congress, and he may figure in politics in this country if he stays here. He is not the first ex-president of a Latin American republic classed as undesirable. Castro of Venezuela was denied admission and Zelaya of Nicaragua was also unwelcome.

Gladdens Their Hearts.

The revival of business throughout the country gladdens the hearts of the Democrats. No matter what they have been saying, they are really aware that if business depression continued they would enter the national canvass next year under a heavy handicap. "If men are at work the Democrats will win," remarked a sage of that party. He was counting over the results of the spring elections and drew his conclusions from years of experience.

Burton's Handicaps.

Cables from different points in South America report the progress of Theodore E. Burton as he wends his way on a pilgrimage which may point to a presidential nomination. Meanwhile certain handicaps which burden his boom have been brought forward. One of these is that Burton is "a little navy man." In the house he opposed every navy program and in the senate has been a consistent opponent of navy increases. But the peace people will be the more strongly favorable to him. Burton himself never took his boom very seriously.

ROOT NOT SEEKING THE NOMINATION

Friends Say He Realizes That Age Is Against Him.

HE LIKES TO STAY AT HOME

New York Expected to Send a Delegation to the Convention Instructed to Vote For Former Senator, However, Bryan Boosters Always on the Job, and He Always Aids Political Friends.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, April 26.—[Special.]—"Root does not want to be president." That statement was made by a former New York congressman, who has been a member of the Republican machine for many years. "It may sound strange, but it is a fact; he actually does not want to be president. What ever he may have thought about it eight or ten years ago, any ambition in that direction has left him."

Elihu Root is rather in love with life. He likes to live; likes people; likes his associates and his friends. He doubts whether he would last a year in the White House, as he would be seventy-two years old when he entered upon the duties if he should be elected.

The death of every man with whom he has been associated, Nelson W. Aldrich, for instance, gives him a slight jar. He sits up and takes notice. Aldrich was seventy-four, only four years older than Root at the present time.

What Will New York Do?

Mr. Root is well aware that it is the intention of New York Republicans to compliment him by sending a delegation for him to the next national convention.

"I must be careful and not allow any idea to get abroad that such action is anything more than a compliment," he has told his friends. He does not want to in any manner consent to anything that would actually put him in the race for the nomination. Under such circumstances it is interesting to speculate upon what the New York delegation would do. Probably with a delegation elected to vote for Root just as a compliment it would be in shape to handle any opportunity offered after a prolonged struggle like that of 1888.

Bryan's Host of Boosters.

Probably no man in public life has had such a host of boosters as William J. Bryan. Colonel Roosevelt alone excepted, and, as I have said before, Roosevelt is always an exception to all rules and everything else. Those Bryan boosters are always on the job. They never let an opportunity pass when they could give Bryan a lift, and Bryan has reciprocated in so far as he has been able.

Those "deserving Democrats" he mentioned in a publication some time ago and for whom he was seeking federal positions consist largely of men who have helped him in the past. One of the greatest regrets Bryan has is that he cannot give places to many of the men who helped him, but so far as he has had power he has cared for them.

Bryan Would Turn 'Em Out.

If Bryan was president there is no doubt that he would make room for his Democratic friends. He would turn out the Republican officeholders right and left. Bryan does not believe in life tenures, nor does he hold that any man is indispensable to the government. Many a time he has said that he thought those who had been holding positions so long ought to get out and give Democrats an opportunity. He did not like Cleveland's method of retaining Republicans. It is quite likely that his one regret in the present administration is that so many Republicans are still holding office while hungry Democrats walk the streets.

What Every Politician Wants.

Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas says that he wants an "open convention," one in which the delegates come from all the states uninstructed and can make up their minds who should be nominated. That is what every politician wants. Take a convention of uninstructed delegates with a dozen favorite sons it would be possible for the shrewd politicians to name the man they wanted. The instructed delegate is a great hindrance to political manipulation.

Nothing Bothered Aldrich.

In all the years that he was boss of the senate Nelson W. Aldrich never allowed anything to bother him. At times he was denounced in unmeasured terms in the newspapers and sometimes on the floor of the senate by his opponents, but he never "turned a hair." He would smile and appear to be utterly indifferent to denunciation and criticism of the abusive kind.

The only time he was ever greatly disturbed was when Dolliver of Iowa so unmercifully scored the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. He refused to remain in his seat during the attacks the brilliant westerner hurled at his pet measure.

Jim Reed's Speeches.

"Do you go to the senate to hear your husband speak?" Mrs. Reed of Missouri was asked.

"Oh, no," was the reply. "The senator often tells me what he is going to say. Many times I ask him to go over his speech to me, as I want to know what he is going to say."

SILVER BULLET WAR

By Carl W. Ackerman, United Press Staff Correspondent. Copyright, 1915 by the United Press, Copyright in Great Britain.

Berlin, April 23—Via The Hague and London—"If this is to be a war of silver bullets Germany is prepared. Wall Street is and can be with the allies, but Germany will remain unfrightened. The German people have oversubscribed two war loans. In my opinion they stand ready to over-subscribe a third, should a third prove necessary."

That is the opinion of financial Germany, as expressed to me today by Dr. Karl Helfferich, secretary of the imperial treasury. It reflects the official view of the relations of finance to the war.

"The fact that a German mark today is worth 22 cents instead of the normal 24," I said to him, "is being quoted abroad as indication that Germany is already whipped. That is one question not understood in the U. S. Can you explain it from the German standpoint?"

"At the commencement of the war" Dr. Helfferich continued, "communication between the U. S. and Germany was out. Financiers are naturally a timid people. First impressions always count with them. It was impossible to keep in close communication with the U. S. Our imports and exports were 'practically stopped. Considerable foreign investments were blocked. We have been unable to conduct our business with the U. S. And our financiers and other neutral foreigners were unable to know at first hand, just what the situation in Germany actually was. On the other hand, London and Paris and New York have been in complete uninterrupted communication. Morgan and other American financiers established branches with the allies. Success for the latter meant success and wealth for these financiers. This has all contributed to slight depreciation of German exchange."

Dr. Helfferich, who is one of Germany's most successful financiers, although 43 years of age, was director of the Deutsche bank, largest in Germany, until the Kaiser picked him to handle the war financiers. He has raised two war loans exceeding $3,000,000,000 and is the real man "behind the money" of the empire.

"The money already subscribed," he continued, "will last until October or November. If the war is continued and more money is needed, a third loan will be floated. And it will also be over-subscribed. Let me tell you why," he said, leaning forward through puffs of cigar smoke. "There are two reasons. German money stays in Germany, as everything the army needs is made in Germany. When supplies are purchased the money goes to German industries and to German workmen."

"The two billions available in April which will be spent by fall will all go back to the German people, the soldiers and their workers today have saving bank deposits of five billions dollars. Although many depositors subscribed to the last loan during January and February when the subscriptions were made these deposits increased $150,000,000. Compare this situation with France. Her one loan amounted to $300,000,000 francs cash. It was ridiculously small, a mere drop in the bucket. So France is now paying her war expenses with treasury bills. Together with England and Russia she is borrowing heavily in the U. S. France today has a debt of five billion francs against the Bank of France. She also has some billions owing for supplies of all kinds. That is a bad situation."

"What affect will the British have upon the situation in Germany?" I asked. "Germany cannot be starved. We have enough food to comfortably feed every one until September or October. The prospects are splendid for good crops throughout the fatherland this year. If the harvest is not too much below the normal we will have by the first of August, enough supplies to last another year."

"This war has now developed into an economic struggle. England, who cannot fight us with iron and steel, can find little hope in her silver bullets or in the prospect of trying to starve women, children and other men combatants. Normally Germany imports only eight per cent of the food it needs. As a result of conservation since the war, people are able now to exist on our own resources. If the harvest is what we expect more bread will be allotted in the fall, as because of the bread cards it has been decided to continue the system until the end of the war. Germany has raised more barley, oats and potatoes per acre than ever before in the history of the world, even in the U. S."

When asked regarding the peace rumors, especially that which has suggested the arrangement of a separate peace with Russia, Dr. Helfferich shook his head.

"I do not think there can be any talk of peace until there is a successful outcome to the war?" he said. Helfferich, besides being a noted financier, is also Germany's leading economist. Since the war his book "Prosperity of the German People," has had an enormous sale and has gone into five editions and is accepted as the standard of its kind.

CHANGED SEATS, AND WAS DROWNED

Gilbert Lake Claims First Fatality of the Season, Accident Occurring Sunday Afternoon

WAS IN VERY SHALLOW WATER

Miss Maud Freeman, of Bemidji, Dead in the Water, Boyd Hamilton, Escort, Escaped

Changing seats in a boat at Gilbert lake Sunday afternoon, which precipitated Maud Freeman, of Bemidji, and her escort, Boyd Hamilton, of Brainerd, into the water, caused the death of Miss Freeman. The accident occurred in shallow water, the body of Miss Freeman lying in two feet of water.

There was no water in her lungs, it is said, and many believe that the excitement killed her. She was a good swimmer. Mr. Hamilton walked to shore, it is reported, and came back with a stick to reach to her.

They had been paddling about the lake in a steel boat. It shipped some water, but had not sunk and Mr. Holmes said would have carried the weight of the two.

Miss Freeman was about 19 years old and had been visiting friends in Brainerd. Hamilton is about 20 years old and is employed at the Northern Pacific sanatorium.

Frank Freeman, father of the girl who lost her life in Gilbert Lake, was telephoned at Bemidji and left his home, arriving in the city on the 3 o'clock morning train.

His daughter, said Mr. Freeman, was 18 years old. She was married to Morris Brett some years ago and has a boy aged three years. She made her home with her father, acting as his housekeeper. She was a most capable nurse, nursing her mother who died of tuberculosis some years ago. Her sister died two months ago of tuberculosis.

Mr. Freeman gave his account of the accident at the lake as he had heard it. His daughter was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fullerton and had been there three weeks.

On Sunday afternoon Boyd Hamilton and his sister and Miss Freeman were to take an outing on the lake. While paddling in the bay Hamilton changed oars and tilted the boat and shipped water. He righted it and shipped water on the other side, said Mr. Freeman, and was thrown out. Miss Freeman fell out too.

She is said to have told Hamilton that she could swim and float. Hamilton, it is said, cannot swim. He went down several times and crawled along the bottom to shore and then waded out to get a stick to help Miss Freeman out. The last he saw of her she had been swimming several rods and was making for shore. She sank but a rod from shore before he could reach her.

Mr. Freeman said his daughter was a good swimmer. She was found in about five feet of water. A physician was called and found no water in her lungs. She was not troubled with heart disease, said Mr. Freeman.

The accident took place about ten rods from shore, said Mr. Freeman. He is heart broken over the tragedy, as his daughter was his only help at home. She leaves two brothers, Leonard, a half-brother and Walter, aged 15, a full brother. The body will be taken to Bemidji for burial.

CAMELS BANQUET PLEASANT AFFAIR

Feast of Oratory and Song and Music Supplemented by Superb Dinner Faultlessly Served

W. F. WIELAND, TOASTMASTER

Wm. Brown, C. Herbal Morris, Walter Elliott, A. W. Tracy, R. R. Wise, Speakers

Saturday evening, April 24, the night of the Camel banquet, proved an occasion long to be remembered in the annals of the local lodge.

The banquet was a most pleasant affair, for with the feast of oratory, song and music, there was a superb dinner served in courses, the viands being cooked and served to perfection.

Walter E. Wieland was the toastmaster and performed his functions with eclat and general satisfaction. His references to Brainerd and to various speakers were received in good humor and he made many hits on the side, scoring high marks on each occasion.

Musical numbers were given first. County Attorney S. F. Alderman sang a baritone solo, the accompaniment being played by his daughter, Mrs. Walter F. Wieland. He was in good voice and received much applause.

Edwin Harris Bergh played a violin solo, the accompaniment being played by Miss Mildred Skauge. The banqueters applauded him heartily. Dr. E. E. Long sang a solo, Miss Skauge playing the piano accompaniment. His singing pleased the audience and he was applauded.

The menu served included these delicacies:

Roast Turkey
Mashed Potatoes
Dressing, Cranberry Sauce,
Sliced Pineapple,
Whipped Cream and Cherries
Cake, Ice Cream,
Coffee

CIGARS

Just as the cigars were reached, the toastmaster announced the first speaker, W. H. Brown, Past Ruler of Minneapolis Temple, No. 66, of the Camels of the World. His was a witty address and after telling a number of good stories he spoke of the Camels and praised the tenets of the order. He pleaded that the time to do good was when a man needed it. The time to give flowers was before eyes were sealed cold in death. He quoted poetry very appropriately.

Toastmaster Wieland announced the regret of the lodge in not being able to greet Former Governor A. O. Eberhart, but other engagements had necessitated his remaining away from Brainerd.

Walter Elliott, of St. Cloud, praised Brainerd, its sand, and its sturdy qualities and extended greetings from St. Cloud lodge. He praised the work of A. W. Tracy, the national organizer who had founded and built up the Brainerd Temple.

Toastmaster Wieland dryly remarked that Brainerd was a good field for a Camel. There was lots of sand around and the town was dry too. C. Herbal Morris, International Organizer of the Camels of the World, was introduced.

Mr. Morris made a live-wire, snappy speech urging the temple to action. He praised the personnel of the local lodge. In his address tracing the growth of the order throughout the Northwest, he praised the work of Minneapolis and St. Paul Temples.

"If you lighten the other fellows burdens, you lighten your own too," said Mr. Morris. He pleaded for co-operation, for that brotherhood of man which helps the other fellow too.

Henry R. Adams, Past Grand Master and Orator of the Masonic Order of the State, delivered an eloquent address on "Fraternity". Quoting from Jean Valjean's history he pleaded for the time when each man would consider the other his brother, when we would realize we were not owners but tenants of the earth.

R. R. Wise spoke briefly and pinned a badge on the bosom of C. Herbal Morris, giving him the freedom of Northern Minnesota. Mr. Morris thanked all for the honor and said he would be pleased to head the caravan in its search for chicken.

A. W. Tracy was called upon. He related his experiences in organizing the lodge and spoke encouragingly of the future.

A word must be spoken of the fine decorations. Electric colored lights were twined about the Camels colors. Pennants and flags abounded, the whole making a most artistic combination.

Lindbergh Admits It

The Akeley Herald says: "Congressman Lindbergh of Little Falls, visited with his daughter, Miss Eva Lindbergh, over Monday evening on route home from Washington, D. C. Mr. Lindbergh states that President Wilson is becoming very unpopular in the far east and that a Republican president will be elected next year without a doubt. ## CHANGED SEATS, AND WAS DROWNED

Gilbert Lake Claims First Fatality of the Season, Accident Occurring Sunday Afternoon

WAS IN VERY SHALLOW WATER

Miss Maud Freeman, of Bemidji, Dead in the Water, Boyd Hamilton, Escort, Escaped

Changing seats in a boat at Gilbert lake Sunday afternoon, which precipitated Maud Freeman, of Bemidji, and her escort, Boyd Hamilton, of Brainerd, into the water, caused the death of Miss Freeman. The accident occurred in shallow water, the body of Miss Freeman lying in two feet of water.

There was no water in her lungs, it is said, and many believe that the excitement killed her. She was a good swimmer. Mr. Hamilton walked to shore, it is reported, and came back with a stick to reach to her.

They had been paddling about the lake in a steel boat. It shipped some water, but had not sunk and Mr. Holmes said would have carried the weight of the two.

Miss Freeman was about 19 years old and had been visiting friends in Brainerd. Hamilton is about 20 years old and is employed at the Northern Pacific sanatorium.

Frank Freeman, father of the girl who lost her life in Gilbert Lake, was telephoned at Bemidji and left his home, arriving in the city on the 3 o'clock morning train.

His daughter, said Mr. Freeman, was 18 years old. She was married to Morris Brett some years ago and has a boy aged three years. She made her home with her father, acting as his housekeeper. She was a most capable nurse, nursing her mother who died of tuberculosis some years ago. Her sister died two months ago of tuberculosis.

Mr. Freeman gave his account of the accident at the lake as he had heard it. His daughter was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fullerton and had been there three weeks.

On Sunday afternoon Boyd Hamilton and his sister and Miss Freeman were to take an outing on the lake. While paddling in the bay Hamilton changed oars and tilted the boat and shipped water. He righted it and shipped water on the other side, said Mr. Freeman, and was thrown out. Miss Freeman fell out too.

She is said to have told Hamilton that she could swim and float. Hamilton, it is said, cannot swim. He went down several times and crawled along the bottom to shore and then waded out to get a stick to help Miss Freeman out. The last he saw of her she had been swimming several rods and was making for shore. She sank but a rod from shore before he could reach her.

Mr. Freeman said his daughter was a good swimmer. She was found in about five feet of water. A physician was called and found no water in her lungs. She was not troubled with heart disease, said Mr. Freeman.

The accident took place about ten rods from shore, said Mr. Freeman. He is heart broken over the tragedy, as his daughter was his only help at home. She leaves two brothers, Leonard, a half-brother and Walter, aged 15, a full brother. The body will be taken to Bemidji for burial.

CAMELS BANQUET PLEASANT AFFAIR

Feast of Oratory and Song and Music Supplemented by Superb Dinner Faultlessly Served

W. F. WIELAND, TOASTMASTER

Wm. Brown, C. Herbal Morris, Walter Elliott, A. W. Tracy, R. R. Wise, Speakers

Saturday evening, April 24, the night of the Camel banquet, proved an occasion long to be remembered in the annals of the local lodge.

The banquet was a most pleasant affair, for with the feast of oratory, song and music, there was a superb dinner served in courses, the viands being cooked and served to perfection.

Walter F. Wieland was the toastmaster and performed his functions with eclat and general satisfaction. His references to Brainerd and to various speakers were received in good humor and he made many hits on the side, scoring high marks on each occasion.

Musical numbers were given first. County Attorney S. F. Alderman sang a baritone solo, the accompaniment being played by his daughter, Mrs. Walter F. Wieland. He was in good voice and received much applause.

Edwin Harris Bergh played a violin solo, the accompaniment being played by Miss Mildred Skauge. The banqueters applauded him heartily. Dr. E. E. Long sang a solo, Miss Skauge playing the piano accompaniment. His singing pleased the audience and he was applauded.

The menu served included these delicacies:

- Roast Turkey
- Mashed Potatoes
- Dressing, Cranberry Sauce,
- Sliced Pineapple,
- Whipped Cream and Cherries
- Cake, Ice Cream,
- Coffee

Cigars

Just as the cigars were reached, the toastmaster announced the first speaker, W. H. Brown, Past Ruler of Minneapolis Temple, No. 66, of the Camels of the World. His was a witty address and after telling a number of good stories he spoke of the Camels and praised the tenets of the order. He pleaded that the time to do good was when a man needed it. The time to give flowers was before eyes were sealed cold in death. He quoted poetry very appropriately.

Toastmaster Wieland announced the regret of the lodge in not being able to greet former Governor A. O. Eberhart, but other engagements had necessitated his remaining away from Brainerd.

Walter Elliott, of St. Cloud, praised Brainerd, its sand, and its sturdy qualities and extended greetings from St. Cloud lodge. He praised the work of A. W. Tracy, the national organizer who had founded and built up the Brainerd Temple.

Toastmaster Wieland dryly remarked that Brainerd was a good field for a camel. There was lots of sand around and the town was dry too. C. Herbal Morris, International Organizer of the Camels of the World, was introduced.

PLACES COLONEL IN ANANIAS CLUB

Perry Belmont Takes Issue With Theodore Roosevelt.

PROMOTION OF LEGISLATION

President of National Campaign Publicity Association Sends Long Telegram to Counsel for William Barnes, Jr., Intimating Roosevelt Gave the Organization No Assistance.

Washington, April 26.—Perry Belmont, president of the National Campaign Publicity Association, sent a long telegram to William M. Ivins, counsel for William Barnes, Jr., in the Barnes-Roosevelt libel suit at Syracuse, taking issue with some of Colonel Roosevelt's testimony relating to campaign publicity legislation. Mr. Belmont calls attention to the quoted testimony of Mr. Roosevelt in which he stated that it was "during the last years of my presidency that the campaign publicity legislation was passed."

"Mr. Roosevelt could hardly be expected to be accurate under the circumstances," Mr. Belmont says in his telegram. "Congress did not enact the first campaign publicity law until June 25, 1910. During Mr. Roosevelt's presidential term the executive committee of the National Campaign Publicity Association, responsible for the initiation in 1905 of this legislation, the movement having started in New York at the close of the Parker-Roosevelt campaign of 1904, became convinced that Mr. Roosevelt did nothing to promote this legislation."

"In response to public sentiment he did send a message to congress referring to the subject and that was all. He now says it is a small feature, which doubtless is his opinion."

Quotes Senate Document.

Mr. Belmont also calls attention to testimony by Mr. Roosevelt that he did not remember Mr. Belmont's part in connection with the legislation and quotes from a senate document containing a history of the movement for campaign publicity legislation, referring to the "well established attendance between the Republican organization and the protected interests and the trusts." Mr. Belmont further quotes from this document the following:

"The dual relation to the trusts had by Mr. Roosevelt at that time throws a powerful light on his present environment, his friendly attitude toward what is generally described as Wall street and its apparent change of front in support of him."

Concluding his telegram to Mr. Ivins, Mr. Belmont says:

"The list of contributions just published is sufficient evidence of Mr. Roosevelt's dual relation to the subject and it is therefore not improbable that the present political drama might end in a reconciliation between the gentleman whom he ventures to call Dr. Jekyll Barnes and Mr. Roosevelt himself in his dual capacity."

BOXING BILL BECOMES LAW

Minnesota Governor Signs Measure for Ten-Round Bouts.

St. Paul, April 26.—Governor Hammond signed the boxing bill authorizing ten-round boxing bouts in St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth.

The law provides for a state athletic commission of three members to license boxing clubs and supervise contests, of which there shall be no more than twelve yearly in each city. The governor named as two of the three commissioners to regulate bouts Frank B. Thompson, St. Paul, and George P. Douglas, Minneapolis. Mr. Douglas announced he will not serve. The third commissioner will be a Duluth man.

The governor vetoed the bill prohibiting the killing or sale of frogs and the measure abolishing the office of hotel inspector and placing the duties under the dairy and food commissioner.

Governor Hammond signed fifty bills and thus ended a grist of 385, as contrasted with 594 approved or rejected two years ago by Governor Eberhart.

LAND MEN AT THREE POINTS

Allies Seek to Prevent Move of Turkish Reinforcements.

London, April 25.—The Daily Mail's Athens correspondent says:

"The new Dardanelles attack by the allies has begun with the landing of troops at three points—Enos, on the Suvla promontory, on the west of the Gallipoli peninsula and on the Bulair isthmus."

"The object of these troops is the capture of the Turkish forts on the Gallipoli peninsula and to prevent the sending of Turkish reinforcements across the Bulair isthmus. The troops have captured Enos and the passage from that port into the interior is not expected to offer difficulties."

"Meanwhile the fleet renewed its vigorous bombardment of the straits and of various points on the west coast of Gallipoli."

ASYLUM HEAD IS SUICIDE

Believed to Have Been Despondent Because of Criticism.

Appleton, Wis., April 26.—George R. Downer, sixty-four years old, superintendent of the Outagamie county asylum for the chronic insane, committed suicide by jumping into the Fox river from the Lowe street bridge.

He is thought to have become despondent because of criticism of his manner of conducting the asylum of which he had been superintendent twenty-five years.

Mr. Downer was born in Waukesha county. He was president of the State Association of Asylum Superintendents.

CLUBWOMAN KILLS HERSELF

Had Been Ill for Some Time With Nervous Trouble.

St. Cloud, Minn., April 26.—Mrs. Martin Molitor, wife of a St. Cloud druggist and prominent in women's club circles in the state, shot and killed herself. She had been ill for the past six weeks with a nervous trouble.

Mrs. Molitor for four years was president of the Sixth District Minnesota Federation of Women's Clubs and was a member of the Sorosis club and Reading society of St. Cloud and secretary of the local charity and library boards.

Mrs. Molitor was about fifty years old.

EDWARD C. WALL IS DEAD

Former Democratic Leader in Wisconsin Succumbs.

Milwaukee, April 26.—Edward C. Wall, seventy-one years old, former president of the Milwaukee chamber of commerce, leading business man and politician, died at his home here after an illness of two weeks, due to a complication of diseases.

Mr. Wall for many years was a Democrat of national prominence. In 1904 he was the choice of the Wisconsin delegation for the presidential nomination.

During the early nineties he was chairman of the Democratic state central committee.

VICE PRESIDENTS HAVE NO POWER

Take Little Part In Shaping Laws or Deciding Big Questions.

INCONGRUITY IN OUR SYSTEM

President, on the Other Hand, Is Almost as Powerful as Any Monarch. Rules Over Nation With Firmer Hand Than Governors Rule Over Their Respective States.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, April 25.—[Special.]—Eulogies of a high order were once accorded a dead vice president of the United States, in the course of which Senator Lodge, one of the speakers, pointed out that the vice president was one of two of the officers of the government for whom the whole people were permitted to vote. He did not go further, for that would have detracted from the idea he desired to convey and say that there was no person in the government of less influence than the vice president of the United States.

It seems to be an incongruity that a man whom all the people elect has no voice in shaping any law, policy or deciding any great question that comes up while he holds the position. The few occasions when he decides a tie vote in the senate means little, for the act must finally be passed upon by another legislative body and by the president.

President and Governors.

The fact that the people elect the vice president and that he has no power brings to mind the difference that exists between the power of the president and that of governors of the states. Officers similar to the president's cabinet are elected in the state. The secretary of state, attorney general, treasurer, superintendent of schools—in fact, most officers of importance—are elected. They have the power over their own appointments, their policies and their actions. They are in no sense responsible to the governor. With a power limited to the state in the first place the governor finds his power over the legislature and over the actions of other officers very much circumscribed.

President's Immense Power.

While another man is elected at the same time as the president by all the people only one has any power granted him. The power of the president is something immense. He has ten cabinet officers to name, all wielding great power over an army of federal officials, and all these subordinates, first and last, in a measure owe their positions to the whim and will of the president. He can dismiss any of them save officers of the army and navy, and he can relegate these to positions of non-entities if he chooses. It is this great power over all federal officers and all federal interests which makes the president almost as powerful as a monarch.

American Neutrality.

"Those Germans complain about the lack of neutrality on the part of the United States," said an officer of the government, "but you notice that their cruisers are not afraid to enter a port of the United States. More than that, they have been shown every consideration by the officials of this government. The United States is neutral all right in dealing with those ships."

Murray Is Confident.

Billy Murray, former congressman and now postmaster of Boston, sees nothing alarming in the political situation, particularly in Massachusetts. He says Governor Walsh will be re-elected next fall if he wants the place and that the Democrats are as strong in the old Bay State as ever. Murray's talk was welcome to the Democratic officials in Washington, as they have not heard so many glowing reports lately.

Wade's Wonder.

Martin J. Wade, recently selected as a federal judge, was for a time the only Democratic representative from Iowa in congress. One fall the Republicans concentrated all their efforts in the district represented by Wade, not only the members of the house, but the senators taking part in the campaign. The result was the election of a Republican and the defeat of Wade. Now, everybody likes Wade, and he was especially popular with his colleagues in congress, so they gave him a sort of farewell sendoff just before his term expired. Naturally on such occasions the guest of the evening was highly praised, and each man in turn tried to outdo the previous speakers. Finally it came Wade's turn.

"I never knew how popular I was among you fellows," he began. "But if you thought so all fired much of me why didn't you say those things when you were going up and down my district last fall doing all you could to defeat me? If you had there would have been no need of this farewell banquet."

Selecting Summer Homes.

It is not the intention of all the cabinet officers to put in their time this summer grinding away at government business. Most of them have selected summer homes where cool breezes blow and where pleasures far greater than bending over office desks can be found.

PLACES COLONEL IN ANANIAS CLUB

Perry Belmont Takes Issue With Theodore Roosevelt.

PROMOTION OF LEGISLATION

President of National Campaign Publicity Association Sends Long Telegram to Counsel for William Barnes, Jr., Intimating Roosevelt Gave the Organization No Assistance.

Washington, April 26.—Perry Belmont, president of the National Campaign Publicity association, sent a long telegram to William M. Ivins, counsel for William Barnes, Jr., in the Barnes-Roosevelt libel suit at Syracuse, taking issue with some of Colonel Roosevelt's testimony relating to campaign publicity legislation. Mr. Belmont calls attention to the quoted testimony of Mr. Roosevelt in which he stated that it was "during the last years of my presidency that the campaign publicity legislation was passed."

"Mr. Roosevelt could hardly be expected to be accurate under the circumstances," Mr. Belmont says in his telegram. "Congress did not enact the first campaign publicity law until June 25, 1910. During Mr. Roosevelt's presidential term the executive committee of the National Campaign Publicity association, responsible for the initiation in 1905 of this legislation, the movement having started in New York at the close of the Parker-Roosevelt campaign of 1904, became convinced that Mr. Roosevelt did nothing to promote this legislation. "In response to public sentiment he did send a message to congress referring to the subject and that was all. He now says it is a small feature, which doubtless is his opinion."

Quoted Senate Document. Mr. Belmont also calls attention to testimony by Mr. Roosevelt that he did not remember Mr. Belmont's part in connection with the legislation and quotes from a senate document containing a history of the movement for campaign publicity legislation, referring to the "well established attendance between the Republican organization and the protected interests and the trusts." Mr. Belmont further quotes from this document the following:

"The dual relation to the trusts had by Mr. Roosevelt at that time throws a powerful light on his present environment, his friendly attitude toward what is generally described as Wall street and its apparent change of front in support of him."

Concluding his telegram to Mr. Ivins, Mr. Belmont says:

"The list of contributions just published is sufficient evidence of Mr. Roosevelt's dual relation to the subject and it is therefore not improbable that the present political drama might end in a reconciliation between the gentleman whom he ventures to call Dr. Jekyll Barnes and Mr. Roosevelt himself in his dual capacity."

BOXING BILL BECOMES LAW

Minnesota Governor Signs Measure for Ten-Round Bout.

St. Paul, April 26.—Governor Hammond signed the boxing bill authorizing ten-round boxing bouts in St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth. The law provides for a state athletic commission of three members to license boxing clubs and supervise contests, of which there shall be no more than twelve yearly in each city. The governor named as two of the three commissioners to regulate bouts Frank B. Thompson, St. Paul, and George P. Douglas, Minneapolis. Mr. Douglas announced he will not serve. The third commissioner will be a Duluth man.

The governor vetoed the bill prohibiting the killing or sale of frogs and the measure abolishing the office of hotel inspector and placing the duties under the dairy and food commissioner.

Governor Hammond signed fifty bills and thus ended a list of 385, as contrasted with 594 approved or rejected two years ago by Governor Eberhart.

LAND MEN AT THREE POINTS

Allies Seek to Prevent Move of Turkish Reinforcements.

London, April 25.—The Daily Mail's Athens correspondent says: "The new Dardanelles attack by the allies has begun with the landing of troops at three points—Enos, on the Suvla promontory, on the west of the Gallipoli peninsula and on the Bulair isthmus. "The object of these troops is the capture of the Turkish forts on the Gallipoli peninsula and to prevent the sending of Turkish reinforcements across the Bulair isthmus. The troops have captured Enos and the passage from that port into the interior is not expected to offer difficulties. "Meanwhile the fleet renewed its vigorous bombardment of the straits and of various points on the west coast of Gallipoli."

ASYLUM HEAD IS SUICIDE

Believed to Have Been Despondent Because of Criticism.

Appleton, Wis., April 26.—George R. Downer, sixty-four years old, superintendent of the Outagamie county asylum for the chronic insane, committed suicide by jumping into the Fox river from the Lowe street bridge.

He is thought to have become despondent because of criticism of his manner of conducting the asylum of which he had been superintendent twenty-five years.

Mr. Downer was born in Waukesha county. He was president of the State Association of Asylum Superintendents.

CLUBWOMAN KILLS HERSELF

Had Been Ill for Some Time With Nervous Trouble.

St. Cloud, Minn., April 26.—Mrs. Martin Molitor, wife of a St. Cloud druggist and prominent in women's club circles in the state, shot and killed herself. She had been ill for the past six weeks with a nervous trouble.

Mrs. Molitor for four years was president of the Sixth District Minnesota Federation of Women's Clubs and was a member of the Sorosis club and Reading society of St. Cloud and secretary of the local charity and library boards.

Mrs. Molitor was about fifty years old.

EDWARD C. WALL IS DEAD

Former Democratic Leader in Wisconsin Succumbs.

Milwaukee, April 26.—Edward C. Wall, seventy-one years old, former president of the Milwaukee chamber of commerce, leading business man and politician, died at his home here after an illness of two weeks, due to a complication of diseases.

Mr. Wall for many years was a Democrat of national prominence. In 1904 he was the choice of the Wisconsin delegation for the presidential nomination.

During the early nineties he was chairman of the Democratic state central committee.

REX BEACH Famous Author, says: "I have smoked Tuxedo in sub-Arctic Alaska, at Panama and everywhere—would not smoke another kind!"

Rex Beach.

Tuxedo—a Tobacco For Wise Smokers

Rex Beach has lived his books. In personality he is much like his own heroes—a red-blooded, clean-cut, strong young fellow, fond of the healthy ways of outdoor life. His tobacco is Tuxedo—a mild yet rich tobacco that is healthful, wholesome, refreshing and beneficial in every way.

You get some Tuxedo today and you'll find your experience with it tallies with Rex Beach's.

Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

Never was a smoke as good as Tuxedo—the pipe and cigarette tobacco without a sting, and with the most pleasant aroma. It's friendly to every man's taste because it's produced by the famous original "Tuxedo Process" that first put the sensitive tongue folks on speaking terms with a pipe.

No imitation can be as good as Tuxedo—because no imitator can use the famous, exclusive, original Tuxedo "process."

FIVE PERSONS MURDERED

White Man Kills Wife and Two Children and Two Negroes Are Slain.

Springfield, O., April 26.—Clarence Walters, twenty-four years old, a truck farmer, shot and killed his wife, Jessie, twenty-two years old, and their two daughters, Ruby, two years, and Virginia, four months old, in their home near here. He then shot himself and, although conscious, remained with the bodies until removed by the police.

Neighbors said he had been acting strangely for some time. He was charged with murder.

Henry Johnson, a negro, was shot and killed by his wife following an argument and Mrs. Mary Johnson, a negro, who, the police believe was shot by her husband, died.

BERLIN ENERGY DEFIES WAR

City Votes $32,500,000 to Municipalize Huge Electric Plant.

Berlin, April 26.—In the midst of the world conflagration the Berlin municipal administration is undertaking the gigantic enterprise of buying and conducting the Berlin electrical works.

The municipal council has unanimously appropriated $32,500,000 to purchase the street car system and assure cheap electricity for the citizens.

At the same time the suburb of Schoenberg is expending a large sum for an extension of its underground lines and Berlin is building a new line connecting the northern and southern parts of the city.

Trawler Envoy Safe in Tyne.

London, April 26.—The trawler Envoy, which was supposed to have been sunk by a German submarine, was brought safely into the Tyne.

HIGH PRICES KILLED

The General says: When we entered the field the price of good roofing was too high. With our big mills, enormous output and modern selling methods we can sell the best roofing at a reasonable price. This has been done to such a great extent that high prices have been killed. Now you get the highest quality at a reasonable price when you buy

Certain-teed Roofing

But there is another great danger. Unknown goods with unknown brands and unknown qualities are being offered at prices that are too cheap for safety. It's a long, long chance you take when you buy these cheap goods. Avoid extremes of cheap prices as well as high prices. Know that the company whose name appears on the goods has the ability to make a good quality roofing at a reasonable price, and that it is guaranteed by them to be the best roofing possible to make; that the company does not sell anything at a higher price, and that the price at which it is offered to you is a reasonable but not a cheap price.

Certain-teed Roofing is guaranteed 5, 10 or 15 years, according to whether the thickness is 1, 2 or 3 ply respectively, and remember this guarantee is backed by the largest mill in the roofing and building paper industry. Ask your dealer for these goods, and be sure they bear our mark. The price will be reasonable.
